Department Year in Review

The spring 1976 semester began with 78 students in the B.U.P. program (compared with 86 a year earlier) and 71 studying for the M.U.P. degree (an increase of 10 over the previous year). The 38 students who entered the graduate program in August of 1975 were selected from 155 applicants, and came from 32 different colleges and universities in 16 states and 5 foreign countries. A new ceiling of 74 students has been placed on the graduate program by the Graduate College, so we will be seeking about 37 new students per year.

Several revisions in the undergraduate program were recently approved and will go into effect in the fall of 1976. The degree is being changed from B.U.P. to B.A.U.P.; the number of hours required for graduation is being reduced from 124 to 120; students will not enter the program until the beginning of their junior years; and the course requirements have been made considerably more flexible, to better reflect the widely divergent career paths followed by the program's graduates. Current plans call for the admission of some 30 juniors each year; thus we will have fewer undergraduate students in the Department at any given time (about 60), but will actually graduate a larger number per year than in the past.

Progress continues to be made on the development of a new Ph.D. in Regional Planning, to be focused on the training of researchers and teachers in the realm of land-use planning. Prospects for initiating the program in the fall of 1977 appear favorable, although many levels of approval remain to be negotiated.

The 1975-76 year saw the successful implementation of a newly-enlarged continuing education program under the able leadership of John Quinn. In addition to the programs which have been run for the last several years (the summer Institute on Planning and Zoning, and the fall Basic Industrial Development Course), two new programs were added: a Winter Conference, to be focused on a separate topic each year ("Housing was the 1976 topic), and a Basic Community Planning Course, involving the full faculty and oriented primarily to the needs of those practitioners in the state and region who do not have professional planning degrees.

There were several faculty changes. Michael Romanos, formerly of the Cornell planning faculty, joined the Department and offered new courses in land-use and transportation analysis. Carl Patton returned to the Department after two years of doctoral studies at Berkeley's Graduate School of Public Policy. John Bryson, a doctoral candidate in planning at the University of Wisconsin, commuted to Urbana once a week during the spring semester to teach the Planning Theory course normally taught by Len Heumann; Len, meanwhile, went on half-time status in order to engage in a research project with the Housing Research and Development Program. Eric Freund returned for the spring semester after a year's sabbatical in England. Ade Onibokun, on leave in Nigeria for the entire academic year, informed us that he has decided to remain permanently in that nation.

The end of the present year will see the retirement of two men who have meant much to the Department through the years, Lou Wetmore and Scott Keyes. A program recognizing the immeasurable contributions made by Lou and Scott will be held on April 30 and May 1. Many alumni have made plans to attend, and a much larger number have sent letters of appreciation. The gap which these two will leave is a sizable one.

Last year in this spot, I pointed out that we have no Departmental alumni association, no Alumni Advisory Committee, nor any other mechanism (other than this Newsletter) for involving alumni in the ongoing life of the Department. I asked for opinions and suggestions on this matter, and received only one response. I'll assume, then, that there is no interest for now in organizing our alumni in a somewhat more formal way--unless I receive some strong indications to the contrary.

A special note of thanks is due those who helped in the preparation of this Newsletter: Nina Edidin and Mike Steele (graduate student assistants), Hasan Huq (graduate student), and Barbara Hartman and Jane Terry (members of the Department's fine clerical staff).

We wish all of you a productive and prosperous year. Keep in touch with us!

Lachlan F. Blair

1975-76 has been another year of enjoyable involvement in Historic Preservation for me, my wife, and a good number of students. A field trip into Indiana and Kentucky during Spring break last year was eye-opening, exciting and rewarding for all 15 who went. It created great pressure for future expeditions.

In early September I chaired a symposium at the Illini Union on "Historic Preservation: The Midwest," involving four departments on campus, 28 speakers, and about 300 participants from 11 states. The strong response has us making plans now for a follow-up Institute early next year, and a Summer Session course offering.

My Fall workshop again was devoted to preservation planning. This time teams did studies of Urbana, the University Campus, Champaign, Elkhart Village, and Will County. The logistics of such a diverse combination in one class almost got beyond me. Response of the communities in follow-up, however, has made it worthwhile. It is evident that our course work is having some influential impact on local awareness and action.

Not all of my life centers on preservation. There's a little Upper Mississippi River Basin research project; some administrative chores including placement, internships, the new BAUP curriculum, and all those undergrad students; other courses in urban design and graphic communications for planners; some civic doings with both the Urbana and the Regional Planning Commissions; and a new chore as Moderator of the Citizens Advisory Transportation Committee of Champaign County. I like to think such involvements help to bring realistic current issues into the classroom.

Other Blair activities include Mary's continuing coordination of the 60-person League of Women Voters' Observor Corps (county-wide); Doug's announcing and copy-writing at WZUU in Milwaukee, grandson Jonathan's 20-word vocabulary (at 20 months), and Marilyn's new bachelor's degree from Beloit (after she gets her geology thesis done). We got in some traveling last summer through Iowa and Missouri, and this Spring down to Natchez, Mississippi, to see (what else?) historic preservation, of course.

Michael P. Brooks

The year has been a highly enjoyable one, though with inadequate time for accomplishing all the things I had intended to do. (Sound familiar? I have a hunch that I'm not alone in this sentiment!)

Off-campus professional responsibilities included service on AIP's National Education Development Committee, the body which grants "recognition" to the nation's planning schools. A recent move on the part of some of the large Eastern schools to pull out of the AIP recognition program has rendered this a hot potato of late.

I have also served as President-Elect of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Planning this year, and will take office as President next fall. Illinois thus becomes the first planning program to have had three of its faculty members in the ACSP presidency, Lou Wetmore and Bill Goodman having held the post in previous years.

An additional time-consumer has been the preparation (ably assisted by two Research Assistants, Mike McDonough and Margaret Winter) of the 1976 edition of the Guide to Graduate Education in Urban and Regional Planning. Publication will occur late in the summer, with ACSP and ASPO as co-sponsors.

Both the AIP (San Antonio) and AIP-ASPO (Washington) Conferences provided welcome breaks in the routine, and it was good to see so many of our alumni on those occasions.

Other activities have included membership on the Education Subcommittee of the Illinois Chapter of AIP; continued involvement on the Board of Directors of the Champaign County Development Council; and the Vice-Presidency of the Levis Faculty Center. (This last one receives my own "Why on earth did I allow myself to get involved in that?" award for the 1975-76 academic year.)

On the family front, Shirley has turned politician and is running for the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court for Champaign County. My oldest son, a junior in high school, led the University High basketball team in scoring with a 20-point average. Unfortunately, the team forgot to win any games, enjoying (?) a 0-20 season. "Character-building" was the only tangible accomplishment.

The Department, on the other hand, had a "winning season," and the outlook for the future is highly positive. I hope to see many of you during the next year.

Clyde W. Forrest

You win some and lose some in planning law. We have a real winner this year. A grad student has: (1) completed the D!xx "Major Project" six weeks before the end of the semester, (2) written on the topic of State Environmental Land-Use Regulation: Its Reception in Court, (3) done a useful and outstanding piece of work, and (4) had a summary of his project accepted for publication in a national law journal.

On the other hand, in the world of zoning litigation, my enthusiasm for land use controls received a setback this year. A city of 90,000 with a diversified economic base was attempting to operate a 1910 model "cumulative" zoning ordinance without benefit of a comprehensive plan. Needless to say, I and the hamstrung planning staff became somewhat frustrated in trying to defend a split denial of a spot-zoning application for a new shopping center.

On the public-service scene, service on a special committee of the Illinois Bar to prepare recommendations for improving the state legislative process promises to be, ugh stimulating! Activities as chairone of the land acquisition sub-committee of the Urbana Park District Advisory Committee have provided class projects for two students and, hopefully, a new look at community planning for parks. In addition, Jeanette and I are presidents elect of the Leal Elementary School P. T. A.--"O Boy"; school closings, teachers' unions, irate parents, and decreased funding!

The family is resettled after the sabbatical odyssey. In fact, we aren't too interested in budging for any lengthy travel. The Summer Institute will keep me in Urbana-Champaign through June. The peaceful charm of central Illinois and a near vacant campus will provide a backdrop for a hopefully productive three months.

[NOTE: If any of you are involved in studies that document costs and benefits of new Interstate highway located regional shopping facilities, please drop me a line.]

Eric C. Freund

As you know from last year's Newsletter, I have been on sabbatical leave in Britain, and returned here on January 6, 1976. The start of my leave has already been related, and the forecasts I made relative to the interesting and exciting new ideas and opinions to be gathered proved to be fully justified judged by the conferences I attended, the interviews that I conducted across the country, and the working parties of which I became a member, both in professional institutions and in the U. K.'s Department of the Environment. All of these provided a rich experience which has given me many new ideas for the future, and which I will be pursuing again in Europe this summer on a somewhat wider scale in regard to the philosophy and practice of land-use control and of social development in the building of large-scale communities.

I was also able to pick up once more a professional interest in which I was engaged for many years when I was working professionally in Britain--namely, the historic preservation and conservation of buildings and industrial artifacts. This includes both restoration for original use, and adaptation to preserve the structure to enable it to be used in consonance with contemporary needs, thus making the project viable in economic terms. This is a most important aspect if the maximum number of projects is to be saved for our heritage.

I was fortunate in that 1975 was European Architectural Heritage Year, and there were a large number of special events--and special projects--that were instituted to honor the occasion. Several of these brought together experts from all over the world, thus providing a unique opportunity to exchange ideas and experiences with them. I still have vivid memories of climbing the ladders on the scaffolding at the top of St. Paul's Cathedral in company with the Surveyor to the Fabric, and recording examples of interesting types of structural damage and repair techniques.

I also walked the ramparts and earthworks of Dover Castle in company with the Architect in Charge during a storm that was so severe that we could see the cross-channel ferry standing off the harbor as the seas were too heavy for it to come through the inlet! I still feel damp from that experience, and my hat has never regained its original shape since being almost liquified. By the way, I saw, for the first time, teak gun carriages being made in the Castle from original drawings! Needless to say, they had great difficulty in obtaining the tools required for the job, and much of the hardware had to be purpose-made from original drawings or patterns.

Although I also visited the Tower of London out of visiting hours--and therefore, with a few others, had the run of the place (except for the ravens who are omnipresent)--it should not be thought that only buildings of major historical significance received national attention. Many projects were concerned with domestic and industrial architecture, and I visited many small sites, both in new town areas, and in old cities and villages, where most interesting preservation work was in hand. I was fortunate enough to obtain a large amount of data and records from these which will be of considerable assistance in a course which I may be running in the Fall.

Although my professional experience on sabbatical proved to be rewarding, my personal life was dealt a major blow from which I am now trying to recover, for my dear wife, Beryl, was killed in a tragic accident in England on October 6, 1975. The loss of such a wonderful companion and helpmate after 33 years of happiness had a critical impact on me and will involve many personal readjustments, the outcome of which I cannot see clearly at this time. However, my return to the Department, the interest of professional work, my involvement with students, and the support of my friends will all help in this readjustment. Above all, the close affinity and friendship which I share with my son, Adrian, now a natural resources planner in Madison, Wisconsin, is a major factor.

I must admit to writing this year's news with less than my usual optimism and enthusiasm, but I look forward, hopefully, to be able to adopt a more positive attitude when I talk to you all next year.

William I. Goodman

The Urbana campus has established an Office of Transportation Research in the Graduate College, and has appointed me Director responsible to the Vice Chancellor for Research. An Advisory Committee on Transportation Research has concurrently been established to advise the Director and the Vice Chancellor for Research.

The formation of the office follows a study by an ad hoc Committee of faculty members, conducted over the past year, of how to draw together the instructional and research resources in transportation that have existed for many years on this campus, to enable them to focus more effectively on complex and relevant problems in this area.

The early work of the office will focus on regional and rural transportation problems in Illinois as they bear especially on commodity shipments and the provision of services to areas engaged in such shipments. It is anticipated that the mobility problems of these areas will be increased as a result of the abandonment of rail lines proposed by the federal government and because of deterioration of bridges and secondary roads throughout the State. Since the manufacture and export of agricultural products are among the most vital activities in the economic life of the State, a study of the impact in changes in transportation facilities and the readjustment of such facilities are critical issues.

Albert Z. Guttenberg

Greetings to friends and students of former years. I was delighted at meeting many of you again at the recent Washington AIP Conference, although we weren't always quick to recognize each other. Time and fashion have worked their changes on all of us, I suppose. Not much to add since the last report. I've done some more writing on land use history, introduced a new course to the curriculum which I'm enjoying very much (U. S. Population and Land Use Policy) and have been participating more than is my wont in various campus committees. Next year I hope I can get away for another sabbatical.

Leonard F. Heumann

Looking over last year's newsletter note, I'm amazed to report progression on all fronts as the year seemed to have zipped by without any change or real accomplishments.

I received two research grants this last year and, as a result, have a half-time appointment in the Housing Research and Development Program and half-time in Urban and Regional Planning. One grant is a second-year extension of the Housing Needs Model for local governments in Illinois. We have written a housing needs analysis handbook and held a conference centered on the handbook this past winter. (Some of you may have seen advertising for this.) The other grant is from HEW through the state Department on Aging. The grant attempts to define and measure those elderly persons with intermediate housing needs--between totally independent living and total dependent nursing care.

This summer I am going to Europe along with two other researchers from Housing Research and Development to explore the possibility of several collaborative international research grants in housing--one on congregate living for the elderly, the other on defining and measuring indicators of housing quality.

Roberta is going back to school in nursing, Sarena is deep into ballet and piano, and Aaron is starting gymnastics. We actually did add the upstairs bathroom--in fact it grew into a combination photographic dark room and utility room for the washer and dryer as well. Actually, there is still some work yet to go; but for the last eight weekends and spring break, I was a plumber, electrician, carpenter and plasterer--NEVER AGAIN!!!

Andrew M. Isserman

It is nice after three years in DURP, to be able to write to the Alumni News and feel that I am writing to friends. Seeing some of you again in San Antonio and Washington has taught me that interacting with former students and learning that they are prospering is a very rewarding part of teaching.

My classes have changed somewhat. Up 476 centers on an individual project rather than exams; each student prepares reports for a state or SMSA on current and projected population characteristics and economic conditions. Thus, they learn and practice various techniques for population projection, economic base analysis, impact analysis and forecasting. (I think you will find the veterans of this course to be able interns or employees for your planning analysis work. Please let me know if you are hiring or would like to contract such work to our students.) My other main course, UP 477 (cost-benefit, cost-effectiveness, and other evaluation techniques), has jelled, finally, and incorporates some materials you may recall from my courses in local public finance and environmental policy analysis.

I, like the other assistant professors in the department, have been pursuing my research interests quite actively. I have accepted a joint appointment at the Center for Advanced Computation on campus and have done contract research for the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality (macroeconomic impacts of proposed environmental legislation), the Illinois EPA (design of a population projection system), and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers (design of an employment impact analysis model). Also, I have done some work on food stamps based on last year's UP 477 (Social Service Review, December 1975), interjurisdictional spillovers and the levels of local public services (Urban Studies, February 1976), and a bracketing approach to estimating employment multipliers (Land Economics, August 1975). Also, I have been appointed editor of a new journal of planning and policy analysis, the International Regional Science Review.

Relieved from the burden of my dissertation by finishing it, I have had time for a bit of travel. I went to San Diego, Boston, San Antonio, Bowling Green, and San Francisco to present papers at meetings, and to Guatemala for a fascinating vacation.

Ben continues to flourish in our new environs at 910 South First Street. However, I just cannot get him to mow the lawn. I think he is smart enough, but he lacks motivation.

Scott Keyes

As most of you know, I will be retiring in August of this year. I am very moved by the events which are being planned by the students and faculty for April 30 and May 1 to honor Lou Wetmore (who is also retiring) and me. I hope I will meet many of you on this occasion. I also deeply appreciate the letters which some of you have written who will not be able to be here.

Of all of the compensations--the thrills--of teaching, none is greater than the thrill of meeting with or hearing from former students; of following their careers; of sharing their joys, as well as their sorrows; of feeling, as you watch their successes, "Gee, maybe I had a little hand in that, too."

My future plans are quite fluid. I expect to be around, continuing to work here in the Department and at the Champaign County Regional Planning Commission on new approaches for comprehensive areawide planning. I may also try to do some work in Washington to assist in the further evolution and improvement of federal-state-local relations in our field.

So, good bye and good luck, and whenever you're around this way, give me a call. I'd sure like to hear from you!

Carl V. Patton

Returning to the Department after two years in Berkeley, I resumed some of my old assignments and added a few new ones from my policy analysis studies. In the Fall, I taught a research methods course which was intended to give students practice with some of the analytic techniques they might apply to their major projects (theses). I also taught a new seminar, Planning and the Budgetary Process, drawing upon my research and study at Berkeley.

During the Spring, I again taught UP 376, covering many of the same topics that were included in the course when I gave it during my first years on the faculty. This year (following Andy Isserman's approach of last year), I taught the course using five case areas in which the students carried out their field work. My second course was a workshop in which students explored the use of communications methods in the planning process. We produced a number of video-tapes describing the ways in which video can be used plus a PLATO teaching computer program to demonstrate its potential as an intermediary between a social service delivery agency and potential clients.

My major research effort this year was to complete my dissertation on early retirement as a policy for a "steady state" university. I also teamed up with Gretchen to do a study of a year-round school (April Phi Delta Kappan), and I joined with a colleague at Berkeley in an analysis of the productivity of academics who consult (Higher Education, forthcoming). I also completed a study of the way in which children are selected for special education programs in "Westville" (Teachers College Record, forthcoming). I presented papers at the Illinois Sociological Society meeting (Communication technology in the planning process) and at the University of Southern California (two papers on early retirement).

Since I'm engaged in a research project in San Francisco (information and referral systems for older persons), Gretchen, Jane, John and I will be spending the summer in California. If you are in the West on vacation, look us up.

Michael C. Romanos

With the beginning of the Fall semester, I found myself in an entirely new situation, as I had to learn to do many things I had never before imagined myself doing. That was, of course, the result of my at once moving into a new house (our first), a new department, and a new accent--in that order of difficulty! Things that I had to learn how to do included such diverse activities as: mowing the lawn--I never realized how fast the damned thing grows; unclog the drains--or try to convince Demetris that the toilet is not the best place in the world to hide his tinker toys; teach my ten T.A.'s the Greek language in four sessions; and struggle to survive UP 171.

In addition, of course, I had to take care of things such as convince the Immigration people that I had not jumped ship, convince my undergraduate students that I am not a communist, convince the Regional Scientists that I know about energy issues, and convince my T.A.'s that, in all other respects, I am a nice guy.

When the semester was over, I had just enough strength left to take care of the nice string normal curve, which my students presented to me at their annual presentation of faculty awards, for my real appreciation of curves of all sorts and shapes.

Despite all these misfortunes, however, I have thoroughly enjoyed my first winter in Champaign. I was only happy to experience the warm environment and the friendly atmosphere that both students and faculty made possible, and be glad, time and again, for having decided to join this Department.

In the production line, a transportation study, funded by the Bronx Community College, was completed and submitted promptly; my monograph, with Stan Czamanski, on Industrial Linkages, went to the printer; my book on residential spatial structure was accepted by Heath-Lexington and will be out the first week of April; and several other things are in the making. If I keep up this schedule, I am retiring next year....!

Mary A. Vance

The Library Committee and I want to thank all of you who responded so generously to our request for funds for the library. A total of $1369 was deposited for us with the Illinois University Foundation. The College of Fine and Applied Arts got us a $3200 grant from the Graham Foundation. These moneys will allow us to maintain the same high standards in our library collection while we work toward getting an adequate budget again from the University. The library is extremely fortunate to have alumni, departmental faculty, and college administrators so willing to help in this effort.

Louis B. Wetmore

This year has been centered on State-Regional Land Use Planning Workshops. During the Fall Semester the exploratory workshop laid the groundwork for cooperative studies for the Spring.

With COSCAA (Council of State Community Affairs Agencies) a decentralized model for state-regional land use planning is being explored. With the South Central Illinois Region an operational plan-making model for the regional land use element is being formulated. The regional land use element procedures will be used by the staff to meet the requirements of HUD in August of '77.

Completing these two workshop studies fits into the series of workshops on Growth Policy over the past ten years. This is a continuing area for study after retirement. Sue and I look forward to enjoying the good days out-of-doors. We know there will be enough rainy days to give us time to work on the many projects that have been deferred since the Sabbatical of '74.

Emeritus

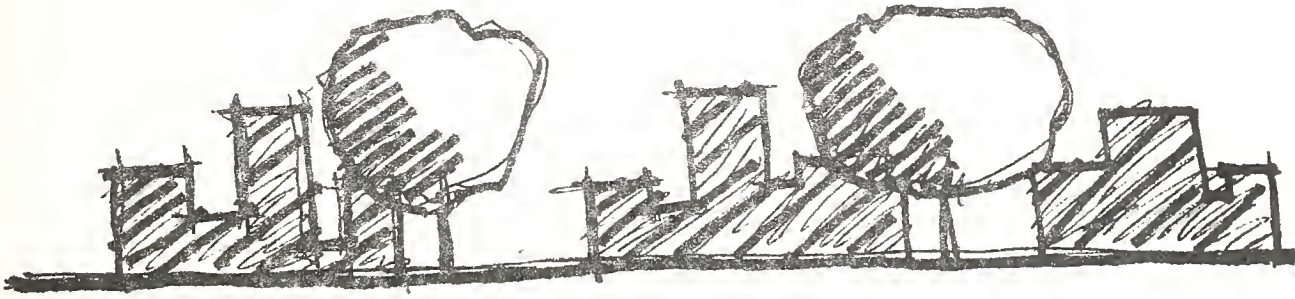
The Department honored retiring faculty members, Professors Scott Keyes and Louis B. Wetmore, during weekend festivities April 30, and May 1, 1976.

A Department Open House, student exhibits (including student produced videotapes) and seminars highlighted the activities which culminated in a banquet at the Urbana Holiday Inn. Over 170 students, faculty, friends and alumni attended.

Mary Nenno, NAHRO, conducted a seminar on "Current Housing Issues and Things to Come." In a marathan two-hour and forty-five minute session, Jerome L. Kaufman, professor of planning at the University of Wisconsin, discussed "How to Make Planning More Effective--Or How to Outfox Your Opponents." He dealt with the need for pre-analysis of the groups involved in an issue for the purpose of formulating a strategy/tactic plan. Going through this pre-analysis, he feels, will give the planner an increased probability of success in plan implementation.

Robert C. Einsweiler, acting director of the University of Minnesota planning program addressed the banquet on the subject of "How Planners Can Regain Their Sex Appeal." Einsweiler quoted the results of a survey conducted among graduates of M.I.T.'s planning program, which indicated that they believe communication skills are the primary requisite of a good planner (85%) and that quantitative skills were much less important (33%).

Keyes and Wetmore were presented with a number of proclamations and awards, including the Department's gift to them--a bronze seal of the University set in wood with an appropriate inscription on the reverse. And, graduating MUP's Mike McDonough and Sally Canzoneri, representing the Student Planning Organization (SPO), presented the retirees with one of the most useful, if not unusual, tributes--personalized, official SPO tee-shirts.



Student Planning Organization News

The Student Planning Organization (SPO) showed itself to be not only alive but also well this year.

The year began with an orientation day for incoming first-year graduate students. After three hours of information on the community, the university, and the planning program, the entire graduate department retired to the T-Bird for beer and pizza. Then it was classes and long hours in Mary Vance's enclave that dominated the activities.

The approach of semester break brought out the best (worst?) in all of us. SPARK, which had turned into a professional looking newsletter, became SPOON for the Christmas issue. An unusual collection of buffoonery contributed by students and faculty was the content.

The Christmas party, held at the new Levis Faculty Center, put the icing on the first semester cake. SPO sponsored an awards ceremony which was a take-off on the academy awards format. Typical of the awards was the Inter-Galactic Planning Award won by Al Guttenberg. His prize? A ninety pound sack of concrete.

Second semester proved to be a test of SPO's ability to effectively represent the interests of the students. Committees comprised of both faculty and students made recommendations which would change the admissions and screening processes. A faculty committee recommended the hiring of a "top-name" researcher to replace the retiring Professors Wetmore and Keyes. In a coordinated, organized effort, SPO took the views of the students to the proper decision-making body--the faculty. As it turns out, both issues were resolved to the satisfaction of a majority.

Two additional major events occurred during second semester. First, nearly thirty students attended the Washington AIP Conference in transportation arranged by SPO. Second, a spirited contest brought out 40 voters (approximately 57% of the graduate students) and the election of Janet Dykes, our first woman SPO president and Don Shane, vice-president.

"Just completed two major assignments that must have taken a few years off my life: (1) building our first home after 28 married years--a real planner's-Landscape Architect's dream--place on a river with 5 acres of buffer yet within the city of Athens. Come visit us yo' all! (2) writing my first book--Urban Wilderness-- the story of the unique open spaces/wildlife resources/9,000 acres of municipal forest park within the City of Duluth, Minnesota. Just imagine--a city of 100,000 population with a major ski area, hang gliding sites, wild animals, such as moose, wolf, eagle, otter, beaver, etc. within the city limits. Not to mention many miles of Lake Superior water-front protected by far sighted planners years ago. (To be published early summer as an official Bicentennial project of the city where we had our office for 10 years and I've continued to consult for the past 5 years.)"

"Having achieved the maximum level of the "Peter" Principal as the Director of the Graduate School at the U. of Colorado, I left the "hallowed" halls to return to full time consulting. Given the economy, another wise planning decision. Education was a planned 2 year stop over at best. I lasted 1 1/2 years, accomplished some of the goals I went in with and got out before the true level of my capabilities was discovered. Planning in Colorado continues to limp along with little leadership and fewer accomplishments."

"I'm still at Fairfax County but anxious to make a change. Recent County elections have taken a sharp turn to the right, if not altogether off the end of the pier. The annual newsletter is appreciated very much; it's good to learn where colleagues and classmates are and what they're up to. Walker's Point is a blue collar neighborhood on Milwaukee's near south side with many homes and other buildings dating back to the 1840's. The neighborhood is multi-ethnic with about half of the 10,000 residents being Spanish speaking. The emphasis of the program is preserving the architectural and ethnic characteristics of the neighborhood without displacing present residents and includes a variety of projects such as housing rehabilitation/restoration demonstrations, increasing neighborhood awareness and pride, architectural and historical research, and resident education. I am also engaged as a preservation planning consultant for several programs or communities in the Midwest."

"Finally married, we bought a house in Seattle and have become a part of society. The previous year has seen a rash of planning documents being published by our Dept., the latest being a bicycle plan for King County. The latest evidence of budget problems throughout has been the transferral of our function and the abolition of Long Range Planning. More detailed community planning has taken the spot light along with any grant possibilities which arise."

"I am currently on a hiatus from planning. From graduation in 1970 until September of 1975 I was with the Syracuse-Onondaga County Planning Agency. From early 1975 I worked off and on with Onondaga County's Office of Economic Development preparing an application for HUD funding under the Community Development Block Grant Program (Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974). We received an allocation as an urban county. When the grant was awarded, I received an offer to assume the position of program coordinator. The title "Coordinator" is particularly apt, because in New York State qualification as an urban county requires cooperative agreements with all of the towns and villages (incorporated municipalities) within the county. That is 34 in our case. If anyone would like to discuss the problems of intergovernmental cooperation and coordination, please let me know."

"The transition from 2 years at the regional planning level to city planning has been an experience in itself. Seasoning in regional policy planning with an advisory organization is not exactly on the job training for a city planning operation. We are now living in a small, wood-heated cabin which I built in the woods on our farm here at Waynesboro. Our home has no electricity, running water, or phone. Our small community has 20 members, 14 adults and six infants, living here on 170 acres. We are still in a formative stage, with 6 houses, a barn, and a bathhouse/kitchen nearing completion. Projects for the summer include a garage, a woodworking shop, and 3 new housestarts. We hope to be food self-sufficient through intensive truck-gardening plots. And so forth. If anyone wants to hear more, or visit, I'd enjoy getting your letter. Best wishes."

"We moved to Madison in March, 1975 after a 2-yr. stay in Rockford Ill. We find Madison a very enjoyable and invigorating city, and live in a large duplex with our two cats. I am now Assistant Director of the Environmental Resources Planning Division of the Dane County Regional Planning Commission. Our Division is one of four in the agency, and has 16 employees. The major task facing me in the next two years is the development of a 208 plan directed at control of urban and rural non-point sources and the protection of our major urban lakes which are becoming increasingly eutrophic. Our agency received a $600,000 Federal grant in June, 1975 for the 208 plan. If any of you are involved in 208 plans, let me know so we can get together and pool resources through exchanging ideas. My wife Marlene is now Administrative Supervisor in the Family Courts in Dane County, and learns of many strange reasons for divorces. She supervises several employees and enjoys her work. We're doing very well, and will enjoy reading about the rest of you in this Alumni Newsletter."

"This is my fourth year of community, county, and regional planning in the Appalachian Mountains of Georgia. It is a very interesting place, and our APDC keeps adding programs. The latest is a local bus service with plans to expand it to the 13-county region during the next five years. We are constructing a new office building, and last week we caught a pick-up truck in our sediment basin. The driver failed to negotiate a curve, flipped off the road, and landed right side up in 18 inches of mud. No one was hurt, and we took pictures to illustrate the effectiveness of sediment basins. The weather has been beautiful here this fall and winter, and field work is a real pleasure. When you have a chance, come on down to see us."

Area covered includes Illinois and Indiana. Continuing work in export management--primarily in Europe, we are up to several trips a year--fun but sure fatiguing. We are in our second year. Progress is slow, but each month sees improvement. Occasionally do some planning and grant consulting. We are attempting to form a couple of joint ventures with other firms that should give us more consulting capabilities."

"On March 1, 1976, I published a pretentiously titled booklet, The Compleat Guide to Jobs in Planning (available for $5, prepaid; but after a lot of searching there seemed to be nothing like it). It provides guidelines for writing a resume and cover letter, and preparing for an interview. Its most important part, though, is a compilation of more than 50 publications (and 2 job banks) that list available job openings in planning. Aside from that, a new job in the real world is interesting. I would like to thank all the Illinois alumni who helped me run for the ASPO Board of Directors; ah sure do appreciate it."

"After completing a Master's in Planning at Cornell last spring, I accepted a job as Senior Planner for Dakota County, Minnesota; thus following the footsteps of other, more illustrious Illinois alumni who populate planning in Minnesota. The job involves both the administration of county land use regulations, and overseeing a local planning assistance program for communities in the county. Consequently, my work has kept me stimulated and busy. Both Janie and I enjoy the Minneapolis-St. Paul area very much. Besides the beautiful lake-filled countryside, the Twin Cities are large enough to offer a variety of cultural and social opportunities, while still being manageable (or bearable?) in size. Currently, I am involved in a community-based planning program which essentially provides planning and technical assistance to community groups. Responsibilities are broad, but primarily focus on Community Development Act program development. Interesting, diversified and extremely demanding position. "We are going into our second year living in Gary. Marty is holding up pretty well under his weird commuting schedule. He's gone from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., but he gets to ride on the last inter-urban railroad all the way to Chicago. I'm sure my lungs look like I've picked up a carton-a-day habit, but it's just the good old Gary air."

Although we are an elementary district, we receive gobs of good federal money because we are desegregated. My job is to create activities and publications to win awareness and support of the community of the school district. Also, I am a duly elected servant of the people, or as some would say, a jive politician. In April of 1975, I was elected to a six-year term on the Harvey Park Board. I also serve as Vice-President of the Board. I occasionally see Alice Rodgers and Kathy Fritsch, now Kathy West. Alice is still Alice, and Kathy is still Kathy. I am travelling every week (300 miles in each direction). We bought a new house along the famous Swedish West Coast and can now offer our visitors from the U.S. activities like boating, swimming, horseback riding, and golfing, all within 5 minutes walk. "Nearing the end of my second year as Senior Planner for the City of Binghamton, N.Y.S. I have been enjoying the task of preparing two program summaries for our Community Development activities, as well as overseeing future commercial and industrial development. The community in which I am working is small (64,123). Though size, in my opinion, is our primary asset, especially when one examines the unsteady urban economies, coupled with urban dwellers desirous of better and more efficient public services. Similar to many urban areas, we are fighting the need for a stronger tax base. Competing commercial, industrial, and residential land-use functions, cements my idea that there is no such entity as peaceful co-existence between desired land-use and their designated purpose. Currently, I am finding time to 'raise-up' from the new Community Development Rules and Regulations. The Housing Assistance portion of the new Rules and Regulations deserves note. Housing needs and short-term impact are to be quantified via specific measures, timetables and three-year goals. Assuredly, this is a more concrete indicator in reaching lower-income, handicapped and elderly persons needs. I'm sure in the future many communities will be abandoning this 'thing' called revenue-sharing. Especially, after they realize the C. D. Program has more dimensions than Urban Renewal Projects of the past. I would like to extend best wishes to the graduating class of '76, also to DURP, who trained me in the fine arts of being a guerrilla in this Bureaucracy."

"While finishing my graduate work, earning Cornell's version of an MUP, I have joined the ranks of Washington bureaucracy and am slurping at the public trough in the Department of the Interior. As planner for the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, I review Federal actions having impact on cultural resources, and work with NEPA and the National Historic Preservation Act to 'mitigate their adverse impact.' Dealing with numerous agency procedures involving projects across the country keeps things at once exciting and obscure...you can't tell which historic hamlet the Army Corps plans to inundate next. I love the life in Washington, particularly in Georgetown, where I live and keep an eye on Watergate and the Pentagon (literally). If any of my friends from the Class of '73 plan to partake of the Bicentennial frenzy in D. C. this year, give me a call. We can make a return pilgrimage to Reston and Columbia!!!"

Scotland was divided into regions and the regions into dists. In May of 1975 I transferred to Strathclyde Regional Council where I'm currently employed, with a team, in the preparation of a structure plan which will cover the former counties of Renfrewshire, Dunbartonshire (the famous Loch Lomond is here), Clydebank, and the hinterlands of Argyllshire. We've identified four major metro areas where growth projections indicate a potential air pollution problem and have begun intensive studies of each--interesting and challenging stuff. Springfield remains hard on the nerves at times; and, in this election year, normally competent professionals in high state government positions will turn into raving lunatics just to keep things interesting (and more frustrating). To the Indians the 'land of flat water'; to farmers and cattlemen the bread basket of the planet; to restless travelers a vasty way-station; to a newcomer like myself an unknown landscape to be explored and understood (not to mention a place to hang my hat for awhile). I am currently doing a stint as a VISTA organizer/planner in Lincoln, Nebraska. There are six of us assigned to the Neighborhood Assistance Bureau which operates under the auspices of the city's Urban Development Department. Our efforts range from neighborhood organizing to the development of a neighborhood planning process with eight low-to-moderate income areas. Much of our work is having an ever increasing impact upon the city's decisions concerning allocation of Community Development Block grant money. Life as a planning student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison grinds on--remarkably similar to my experience in Champaign. I've been quite happy and satisfied with Wisconsin's planning program. Ironically, the UW planning department dropped their thesis requirement for Master's degree candidates--which may have influenced my preceding comment. "As with most cities budgetary problems loom large in the City of Fairborn. Fairborn (population 36,000) has only a 1/2% city income tax which put some real constraints on what can and what cannot be accomplished. The City is looking at having to substantially increase its water, sewer, and sanitation rates in 1976 as a result of a new wastewater treatment and water treatment plant coming on line in 1975. There was only one change on the City Council in the November elections, which was good news to the City staff. In the same election a tax levy for street capital improvements was defeated about 2 to 1--a setback to me personally. That's all Folks!!"

Office: Planner
RTKL Assoc. Inc.
Village of Cross Keyes
Baltimore, Maryland 21210

"Although the firm is very design oriented, we are involved in some interesting planning work. Presently working on a two year pedestrian planning research study for DOT/FHWA. Also involved in CBD studies for a couple of cities. Baltimore has a lot going for it, many strong neighborhood associations--some grass roots planning, major redevelopment in the downtown core area and the Colts! I hope everyone throws in a couple of bucks for the CPLA Library fund--got to be a good cause."

Office: Urban Planner
Coastal Zone Management Program
300 North State, Room 1010
Chicago, Illinois 60610

"My job is with the Coastal Zone Management Program--it's in its 2nd year of a 3 year planning program. The Illinois program is designed to set up a management program for the Lake Michigan shoreline. My job is interesting; it involves writing some technical papers for the staff, some public participation info, running informational meetings, monitoring consultants work. We're working on defining the coastal zone boundary & designating areas that merit special management attention along the coast. Learning lots about natural resources & coastal erosion processes. Living in Chi-town is a real experience. Lots of great things to be found in a city of this size. Glad to be living here, but maybe not for always--miss smaller cities like C-U. Along those same lines, over the past 6-7 months I've been able to give first hand information as to the high cost of travel these days. Pierre, South Dakota is many moons from Chicago. Anyway Ed & I decided it was decision-making time and we're planning a wedding in October sometime. Haven't decided where we'll live--probably be a while 'til plans are firmed up. (Jane--your prediction was right.)"

"After living in temporary apartments and houses for 2 1/2 months, I finally moved into a permanent apartment on the west side of town. The adjustment to Wichita has not been difficult at all--only the matter of finding suitable living arrangements and paying off last summer's "job hunting" debts. The three major areas of work in which I am involved are the open space plan, the land use plan, and environmental assessments of local projects. Anybody who happens to be out this way is welcome to stop off for a while--whether on vacation and passing through or while job hunting."

"No earthshaking news to report. Both Carol and I are pleased with our work and our location here in Evanston. The "208" program for northeastern Illinois is progressing slowly, but perhaps as fast as can be expected given the complexities of the task and the difficulties of setting up a workable system for public involvement."

Neighborhood Housing Services
Near Northwest Division
2412 North Western Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60647

"First of all, I'm very happy with my job. I work for a private nonprofit organization pulled together by neighborhood residents and representatives from area banks and savings and loans to deal with the problem of disinvestment. We have been in operation since September 1 and have been processing both home improvement and mortgage loans as well as providing technical assistance to people in the neighborhood. The job has taught me a great deal about the technical and financial aspects of housing and I'm also learning a lot about neighborhood organizing. It's nice to be living in Chicago again also, although sometimes I miss Champaign. I do not, however, miss the 20-page reading lists. I'm glad I have been able to maintain some contacts with my friends in the now second year class and I wish them the best of luck."

Office: Community Planner
Fargo-Moorhead Metropolitan COG
44 Foss Lane
Moorhead, Minnesota 56560

"As a senior planner with Fargo-Moorhead Metropolitan COG I am in charge of housing and land use planning for the SMSA. This area, though little known around the country, has a very stable economy (based mostly on agriculture). It is among the fastest developing SMSA's in the U. S. I am currently concentrating on completing the housing market analysis and developing a land use model for the SMSA. During my off duty hours I plan to start free-lance building design/construction work in order to pursue my interests and skills in architecture. Maryclare is enjoying her work at HEDS--local distributors for Success Motivation Institute. We thoroughly enjoyed our extended camping vacation last summer. We traveled through New Hampshire, Main, Nova Scotia, Gespe Peninsula, Qubec City, Montreal, Toronto, and Niagra before returning to Minneapolis. We found Cape Breton (N.S.) and Gespe Peninsula to be most scenic and ideal for a quiet vacation by the ocean. We look forward to camping & fishing in Minnesotan & Canadian wilderness next summer."

Building and Zoning Department

"I began this job in August 1975. My main responsibilities include Zoning Administration, Planning, and occasionally being a part-time Building Inspector. The City is planning to update its Comprehensive Plan in 1976. The City will probably contract with a planning consultant firm to update its current Comprehensive Plan since I am presently the only planning staff the City has. I hope to play an active role in updating the current plan."
